Driving Miss Daisy (1989). Daisy Werthan (Jessica Tandy), a 72-year-old wealthy Jewish widow living in Atlanta, Georgia, hires Hoke Colburn (Morgan Freeman), a black chauffeur, to drive her after a mishap with her son. Initially resistant to the idea of having a driver, Daisy's relationship with Hoke evolves from one of mutual irritation to a deep friendship as they navigate personal and societal challenges, including issues of race and independence.
